

Once upon a time there was a frog called Lewis, who loved to play jokes on people. Lewis lived in a cold country in Austria where it snowed.

One day later a little boy said to his mum can we go on a plane to Austria, and mum said yes.
The plane took two hours to to Austria, where they arrived in a village called Gauss.

When they arrived they took a bus to get to their hotel, which had a swimming pool.

After a while the little boy went to play in the snow, then the little boy saw Lewis the Srog walking by then suddenly Lewis the Srog saw the little boy so Lewis the Srog ran and hid behind a very tall tree. After a while Lewis the Srog was starting to dig a hole in the snow, when he finished it he started to build an igloo. When he finished the igloo the little boy found the igloo and went straight in to the igloo and fell in. After a while Lewis the Srog jumped out and the little boy started to laugh.
